DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claims 1, 2, 10-16, 26-29, 35, 36, and 42-60 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Smith et al.

Smith et al disclose a flexible recording medium comprising a semi-rigid substrate and a flexible carrier sheet which is embossed with data. The carrier sheet is formed of a single layer or multiple layers such as a plastic film and metal layer. (see col. 8) The carrier and/or substrate have ink receiving layers for graphics. (see Fig. 29 and claim.1) The carrier sheet is temporarily bonded to the substrate via an adhesive. The carrier periphery is defined by holes which do not penetrate the substrate (see Fig. 29). The carrier is peeled from the substrate for use with a reading device. (see Fig. 31) The substrate and carrier are flexible enough to be deformed without harming the carrier sheet. The medium may be used as an insert or attachment in a paper or magazine. (see col. 10). It is recognized that the reference does not specifically refer to a book insert, envelope, etc. but only to a magazine insert. However, these are seen to be analogous.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 3-9, 17-25, 30-34, and 37-41 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Smith et al.

The reference disclose the recording medium as described above. It is recognized that the reference does not disclose the specific peel strength, resiliency, and flexural modulus as claimed. However, as the recording medium is to be used for the same purpose (magazine insert, etc.), one of ordinary skill in the art would have known to set the same parameters for these properties to avoid loss of adherence and breakage.

It is also recognized that the reference is silent as to adhering the carrier sheet to the substrate via static force. However, the reference does disclose that the two are adhered by a known means which would allow temporary adhesion. Therefore, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use static force in place of an adhesive. One would be motivated by the reasoned expectation of obtaining a similarly releasable carrier sheet, especially given the known static forces associated with these plastic materials, i.e. the use of anti-static coatings in the art.
